EUROTHROMBOSIS SCIENCE 2008: FOCUS IN ATHEROTHROMBOSIS

Intense scientific research has led to our current understanding that atherogenesis, lipids and other risk factors inflammation, coagulation, platelets, fibrinolysis and atherosclerosis progression are closely linked. This is the reason why the Working Group on Thrombosis of the European Society of Cardiology chose to organize the Eurothrombosis 2008 to foster an intense interdisciplinary discussion among clinicians and basic scientists working in the field about their latest perceptions of atherothrombotic mechanisms. Our aim is to facilitate the transition of the new understanding of atherothrombosis from bench to bedside and the translation of current state of the art knowledge into general clinical practice. This congress is an activity of the Working Group on Thrombosis of the European Society of Cardiology.
